ST. MARY'S (Anglican) CHURCH
Rev. P. A. Richard, Vicar
Service will be held Sunday, Nov.
6th, at 2.30 p.m.

A very pleasant W. A. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Pryce Jones on Tuesday, October 25th, when three carloads of ladies from St. Thomas, W. A., Wainwright, paid us a visit.
During the afternoon a farewell was given to our treasurer, Mrs. H. Carter, who has left for the coast. Our visit in a few well chosen words expressed the regret of us all at her departure. A Common Prayer and Hymn book was given to Mrs. Carter from her fellow members of the W. A., for which she very feelingly replied. The meeting closed with the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." Mrs. Carter will be very much missed, as she has been treasurer of the W. A. for nearly four years.

Irma Y.P.U. Report

A large number of young people attended the Y.P.U. meeting held in the United Church October 27th.

The meeting opened with a hymn and Mr. Longmire led in prayer.

Agnes Craig gave the scripture reading. Mr. Larson was the speaker for the evening. His topic was "The Ideal of Study" and was very helpful.

The devotional part of the meeting
then closed with a hymn.

The business part of the meeting came next and was composed of plans for the banquet and Y. P. rally to be held in Irma United Church Nov. 5-6.

A program was then given and the following numbers were received with enthusiasm: Anthem, by the choir; piano solo, Aletha Knudson;
reading, Art Larson; vocal selection, Marjorie McFarland. Those in charge of the program were: Mary Jones, Marie Webber and Stuart Penton.

After singing another hymn the young people all went down to the basement of the church where a splendid selection of games and stunts were arranged under the able leadership of Aletha Knudson, Stella Arnold and Allison Carter.

The Irma Y.P.U. is looking forward to great things this year, and a hearty invitation is extended to all young people who would like to join.

THE WEEKLY PRESS

About a week ago the annual meeting of the Alberta Weekly Newspaper Association was held in Calgary. It brought together, from all parts of the province, the men and women from the towns and some of the smaller cities of the province who are providing for their communities one of the most valuable services. Almost every school of political thought was represented, but in general it may be stated that the outlook of the editors is independent—over the outlook of those who give their support consistently to one political cause or another.

The weekly newspapers in the aggregate exercise a wide influence, and in numerous instances they have made notable contributions to the development of their communities and of the province.—Western Farm Leader.

art, Canada is the place."—Frederick day are over-government, over-taxa-taxation."—John A. Rowland, K. C.

"The British Empire is the greatest aid to world stability today."—

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Among the notes that echoed from convention at the last W.C.T.U. meeting was an account of the poetry planning in the grounds of the Bible School in commemoration of the centenary of Francis Willard's birth;
the two honorary presidents, Mrs.
Tracey of Edmonton and Mrs. De-wary of Calgary took part in the ceremony, as did the mayor, to whom was presented the brass plate marker.

There was an exhibit at the meeting of the six prize-winning posters; and the "Story of my poster" as written by Robert Johnson of Calgary, was read. He was a high school boy, whose poster won for him the distinctive honor of having been awarded first a local prize, then a district prize, later a provincial and finally a National prize. He was specially requested to write the history of his effort for the convention program.

An enormous birthday cake had been prepared for the banquet by the entertaining union (Didsbury).
This was illumined by 25 candles in honor of the 25th annual convention of the Alberta W.C.T.U.

An address by T. F. Kitch, K.C., of Calgary, on "The Courts' Responsibility in Accident Prevention—Handling the Drinking Driver," was an interesting feature of the program; as was also one by Rev. H. Stibbard, president of the associated temperance forces of Alberta.

The W.C.T.U. broadcast went over fine.

With the topic "As Our American Sisters Are Doing It," Mrs. Grevelt brought an inspiring message from the recent San Francisco convention.

A few changes were made in officers and superintendents of departments.

Altogether, it was voted one of the best ever annual meetings from which found inspiration will flow through the coming year, strengthening our forces and ennobling the way.

To the second topic on the program of the local meeting, "Jail and Prison Reform," Mrs. Locke contributed the following notable quotation: "Crime in the United States costs three times more than education, 10 times more than maintaining the army and navy and four times more than the expense of controlling the Federal Government. It represents one-fourth of the national income. Possibly the figures would be different for Canada but they would not cause any of us to grow enthusiastic. The criminals are usually young people. In one prison 80% of the inmates are under 30 years of age. The largest group is 19, the second largest 18. This

RIFLEMEN TO SLAUGHTER 2,000 ALBERTA BUFFALO

Wainwright, Oct. 29.—Two thousand and buffalo will be slaughtered in the annual wedding-out of the world's largest herd at Wainwright National Park in November, Dominion government officials announced here.

Skilled riflemen will shoot the 2,000 selected from the herd of more than 6,000, bringing to 12,000 the total slaughtered in the park since it was found an annual decrease was necessary.

The meat and hides are purchased each year by an Alberta abattoir.
This year's slaughter will bring the federal government about $40,000.
Round-ups of the animals, which once roamed the prairies in hundreds of thousands, are held in November to ensure both meat and hides being of a high quality.

Indicates that preventive measures should be attempted during childhood and youth.

Discussion on this subject was deferred until another time.

The Plight Of Youth

The phenomenon of young, unemployed men in large numbers wandering aimlessly all over the country in the past two or three months, some of them honestly looking for work and others professedly searching for jobs but hoping to avoid them, has been termed, and not without warrant, a "national disgrace."

There cannot be sympathy for these youths. Many of them are offspring of thrifty, hard-working parents. Many of them are fairly well educated, some even holding university degrees. Some of them are well equipped to occupy an honored place in the business and social life of the country and have the right attitude towards work, but they find that industry does not want them, has no place in its crowded ranks where they can fit in.

On the other hand, the ranks of these idle, footloose youth include some who are more shifty than thrifty, some who prefer to shift rather than work, and some who are outright morons and ne'er-do-wells. Unfortunately, in the minds of a section of the general public, there is an inclination to include all of them in the latter category, and this tends to make the lot of those who are willing and eager to work and who are unable to do so through no fault of their own, harder to bear.

Unless something is done to enable these young men to find their place in the social and business life of the country, and particularly those who by upbringing, education and inclination are worthy material for citizenship, their ultimate fate is difficult to predict, beyond the general statement that it can hardly be expected to be creditable for themselves, their forbears or their country.

Action Is Needed

As stated at the outset, one cannot help but be sympathetic towards these youth and grieved at the predicament in which they find themselves, but sympathy alone is not sufficient. Sympathy must be translated into practical action if mental, moral and physical disaster is not to be the goal towards which they press. In other words, a helping hand must be extended, if not by private effort, by the governments of the country.

On the face of it the problem seems insoluble until such times as industry has sufficiently recovered from the slings and arrows of misfortune to enable it to absorb them. The only other solution, temporary or otherwise, is for the governments of the country to do something more than is now being done.

It will be argued, of course, that in the west, the federal government has made some provision to take care of these benighted youth by establishing the farm bonus plan and in providing the funds for the operation of youth training classes in the larger centres.

The former has undoubtedly will again be of some assistance in aiding unfortunate youths but the farm bonus plan, after all, is only a seasonal and very temporary measure. It takes care for a few months of the year of one class of the unemployed young men and only a percentage of the total. Moreover, it does not ordinarily train for or lead in the direction of permanent employment for the great majority of its beneficiaries.

The youth training project, too, has undoubtedly merits. The educational opportunity it affords is excellent and unquestionably those who attend these classes and pursue their studies with diligence, thereby better equip themselves to occupy a place in industry if and when the opportunity to do so appears, but unfortunately it does not, at present, lead to self-support, the natural ambition of every right-minded youth.

Abundant Opportunity

All that youth training does, as yet, is to increase the number who are equipped to compete for the few vacancies that occur in industrial life at a period when trade and commerce, using the term in its broadest sense, has not emerged from the doldrums.

Until such time as industry is able to more adequately provide for the needs and ambitions of the youth of the country it would appear that the only thing for the senior governments to do is to make some provision to enable youth to give vent to its energies in the natural and proper manner through work, and this can best and most profitably be done through the development of the vast natural resources in which the country abounds.

One could list a number of projects which might be undertaken, the prosecution of which would restore moral tone and physical vigour to disappointed youth and at the same time yield some return to the taxpayers who would have to foot the bill. It is hardly necessary to enumerate such development possibilities. One has only to look around and see the opportunities.

There is plenty of work of a beneficial nature to be done and there are plenty to do it. Why not connect the two?

Had Right Answer

"James," said the teacher, "come in front of the class and spell 'neighbor'!"—and he did so correctly.

"That's quite right, James!" said the teacher. "Now, Tommy, it's your turn. Please tell me what a neighbor is."

After a pause, "Please, miss," said Tommy, "a neighbor is a woman who borrows things."

A bottle of water, standing outside a California house in 1931, focused the sun's rays with such intensity that the wooden wall was ignited.

France Gets More Showers

France and other parts of western Europe receive less rain than the eastern United States, but, since the showers are lighter and more frequent, less water is lost by draining than in this country, where more sunny days and harder rains are more common.

Campaign For Conscription

Preparations in Britain To Be Ready In Event Of War

Sir Auckland Geddes, war-time minister of national service, appealed for re-establishment of a government office similar to the one he headed during the Great War, to ensure mobilization of the population for a total war within a few months after the outbreak of a new conflict.

In a letter to The Times, Sir Auckland suggested submission of a simple questionnaire to all British voters to determine their reaction to his proposal, which received the editorial support of The Times.

Viscount Rothermere's Daily Mail intensified its efforts to obtain replies from its readers to a questionnaire asking: "Are you in favor of obligatory military service or organization of a volunteer service?"

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express also continued its campaign for conscription of the nation's economic and man-power resources, citing the statement of Frank Fehr, president of the Baltic exchange—one of the world's greater grain markets—in favor of conscription of men for the army and also for industrial and commercial enterprises.

Mr. Fehr said officials of the Baltic exchange were disposed to see their entire organization placed at the disposition of the government.

Something New In Food

Ginger Bread With Buttermilk Said To Be Fine Combination

The columnist of the Baltimore Sun, in writing one of his contemporaries, the other day remarked he had found what he called an unusual food combination recently—buttermilk and ginger bread.

"That is a food combination the origin of which would be hard to determine," says the columnist, "but I know it was a very popular combination constantly indulged in on the eastern shore of Maryland from time immemorial. The habit probably drifted down from Pennsylvania, for in every lower Pennsylvania home it is considered one of the best food combinations there ever was."

"Out in Carroll county no farmer's wife would think of offering you buttermilk without a slice of ginger bread with it—and if ever there was a combination that could charm away the torments of a hot day it is a glass of buttermilk right out of the springhouse and a hunk of ginger bread made by the old-fashioned method descended to Maryland housewives from the angels. Try it some time on a hot day after a long, tiring walk."

The English Translation

A Chinese landed in England for the first time. At Dover an official asked him his name.

"Sneeze," replied the Oriental.

The customs officer stared hard at him.

"Is that your native name?" he asked.

"No." The Chinese shook his head. "I had it translated into English."

"Then let's have your native name," persisted the officer.

"Ah Choo it is," replied the other.

Hermit Cell

Site Of Historic Cell Is Found In Westminster Abbey

The site of the cell of the famous "Hermit of Westminster," credited with an important role in the history of the early Tudor kings, was believed discovered in Westminster Abbey.

Lawrence E. Tanner, keeper of the Monuments and Library of the Abbey, disclosed that during spring cleaning he found a window and a door near the Poets' Corner of the Abbey.

The door had been blocked for an unknown number of years, but Tanner concluded from old records that it led outside to a cell in which an elderly monk or holy man lived in retirement. No trace of the cell remains.

Tanner said Henry V. probably passed through that door the night his father, Henry IV., died, March 20, 1413, and may have spent the night there with the hermit, who was given credit for reforming the young king. (According to the Shakespearean story, Henry V. was a wild young man before his accession, the companion of Falstaff and other disreputable characters. After his father's death he became one of England's ablest kings.)

Prison With A History

The Tombs On Manhattan Island Is Offered For Sale

Manhattan Island's saddest spot—the place where criminals have been punished for 300 years—is for sale.

The city announced that the prison courts building, both atrocious specimens of architecture—and the land on which they stand are for sale. The price will be $1,850,000.

The ground on which the buildings stand once was the jolliest place on the island. When Hendrick Hudson came in 1609 the spot was covered by a beautiful pond, fringed with mighty trees. The Dutch called the pond Kolch, meaning fresh water.

Like the Dutch, the English used the pond as a winter skating place. When the young Duke of Clarence, who later was to be King William IV., was a misbehaving fighting George Washington's revolutionaries, he fell through the ice of that pond.

But the pond saw more than happiness. On its shore the Dutch erected a gibbet. The English, too, used the spot for hangings. Americans, in 1830, followed precedent by draining the pond and building a prison. Because of its Egyptian-style architecture, the public called it The Tombs.

Another Silk Substitute

New Textile Fibre Is Said To Be Actually Run-Proof

Japan is having trouble selling enough goods abroad to finance her imports of munitions for war and for necessities. Now her best supplier threatens to reduce her main export, which is silk. From the laboratories of the main rayon manipulator in the United States there is news of the perfecting of a revolutionary textile fibre. It is declared to be entirely different from rayon or anything else now on the market, and is so strong and elastic that really run-proof stockings will presently be an actuality. Thus, the new fibre may replace real silk in its own great remaining market, hosiery.—Brandon Sun.

Outspeeds Howitzer Shell

Eyston Believes His Record Of Value To Car Designing

Captain George E. T. Eyston, who set the land record of 357.5 miles an hour in his seven-ton automobile, Thunderbolt, told some 200 members of the Downtown Athletic Club in New York about travelling faster than the shell of a field howitzer.

Introduced by Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, which timed Captain Eyston's run on the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah, and president of Eastern Air Lines, the British speed driver said that he believed record-breaking in specialized machines was of great value to the advancement of general automobile design from the points of view both of safety and efficiency.

"Tires able to withstand six miles a minute," he said, "prove that tires can be built which will not blow out at ordinary road speeds. Finer steels and light aluminum alloys and the precise workmanship which go into the construction of such a machine as the Thunderbolt with its 4,000 horsepower inevitably mean advances for the motor car intended for the average driver."

After describing how his machine was started by being pushed by a truck just to get the huge engines turning over, and how the change was made from second gear to top gear at a little over 200 miles an hour, Captain Eyston said that when the machine attained its top velocity the eight 48-inch wheels were revolving forty-five times a second. Speed reached, he added, 550 feet a second, compares with 700 feet a second for the bullet of a .45 calibre revolver and about 400 feet for a howitzer shell.

"During the run," he said, "the Thunderbolt gives off a streamer of black smoke about three and a half miles long. It passes the timing observers, with their electric eyes, simply as a 'swish.' Sound of its passing follows about half a mile behind."

Something Really New

Paper Pillow Cases Protect Sleeper Allergic To Feathers

Here's another wrinkle for keeping down washing. The New York Herald Tribune tells something new in house, the housewife's dream come true, in short:

"Did you know that you can have pillow cases for as little as 10 cents apiece, if you'll use paper ones? They are as soft as face tissues but heavier and stronger. We have actually tested them for a full week. These paper pillow cases really came to light as a protection for those unfortunate allergic to feathers. No odor or dust particles from the pillow itself can penetrate through them. But many a person not allergic to feathers will welcome them for nights when an extra layer of face cream or an all-night sleep treatment warrants special pillow protection."

Old Castle Wall Found

The foundations of a wall believed to be 600 years old were discovered by workmen digging a trench to lay pipe to the guardroom of Windsor Castle. It is more than five feet thick, the brickwork is in excellent preservation, and it was drilled through with difficulty.

How Kangaroo Was Named

The kangaroo was named through a misunderstanding. In 1770, Captain Cook asked a native the name of the animal and the native replied "kan ga roo," meaning "I don't understand."

Cook thought it was the name of the animal.

Canadian Coal Seekers Have Found Petroleum 2,300 Feet Down

What is believed to be the first submarine oil bed in the world has been found at Inverness, Nova Scotia.

A diamond core seeking new coal seams in a government-operated colliery came across flowing oil a mile from the mainland and 2,300 feet vertically below the sea surface. The crew had penetrated 233 feet horizontally in coarse sandstone formation when they found droplets of oil and water.

Confirming the find, Dr. Alan Cameron, provincial deputy minister of mines, said:

"We're going to carry the drill hole on further. According to the geologists and engineers there are definite showings of oil. If it is petroleum, it will be hard to get it."

Pet At Chicago Zoo Does Tricks Only On Cool Days

Mei-mei, the Chinese baby panda, was a disappointment to Brookfield Zoo authorities in Chicago because she would not play up to her public like her predecessor, the late Su-in.

Then came the season's first really cool day, so cool in fact that many persons hugged fireplaces instead of going to the zoo—and Mei-mei showed her first interest in playing and people. Mei-mei frisked and rolled, climbed and wiggled her nose at the few overcast spectators, while nearby baby gorillas went into a huddle and shivered.

Assistant Director Robert Bean is trying to figure out how to get Mei-mei and the public on an equal interest basis.

NIGHT COUGHING CAN OFTEN BE PREVENTED

If your child often coughs at night because of even a slight cold—do this at bedtime: Thoroughly massage Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back. VapoRub's poultice-natural action tends to keep the air-passages clear, helping to maintain normal breathing through the nose, and so reducing mouth-breathing (the frequent cause of night coughs). Try it tonight—learn for yourself another reason why VapoRub is a family standby in more homes than all other medications of its kind put together.

POOR MAN'S GOLD

Hammond began to file the ragged edge of a long-handled shovel.

"Don't you think it's up to us to get as much gold out of that creek place as we can? We'll have to be hiring men soon."

The older man shot him a quick glance.

"That's the fourth or fifth time you've brought that up," he said.

"Well?" asked Hammond. "Didn't we talk it over the other night?"

"We didn't come to any decision," "I did."

"That doesn't make two of us."

A certain asperity had grown up between the two; looking back, Hammond felt that McKenzie Joe's nature had become steadily sourer ever since the first arrival of Timmy Moon's airplane and its passengers.

Jack had resented that, as though it were an implied insult to the girl he loved.

"We Didn't Come to Any Decision."

"Look here, Joe. We've got to get our money out of this discovery. We can't stay here forever."

"Seems to me," McKenzie Joe said, as he looked out over the valley, "when we found this place, we both figured it was where we were going to settle down—that we had a life job."

"We're not going to leave a year's job, if we don't find that older bedrock. That Loom creek placer won't be enough for us."

"It's enough for me right now," the older man said. "I ain't ever seen that much money before."

Hammond bent over the shovel blade.

"Our ideas are different there."

"You mean, you've let somebody change 'em for you?"

Hammond threw down the shovel; it clattered on the wooden floor.

"I'm getting tired of that. If you've got anything to say about Kay Joyce, come out and say it."

The other man glanced at him over his shoulder.

"Did I mention any names?" he asked quietly and moved away toward the upper diggings, a new test shaft, somewhat distant from camp and rather deep in the forest, by which they sought the bedrock.

Hammond did not follow.

Instead, with the shovel over his shoulder, he headed for the placer workings along the creek. It was a rejuvenated camp through which he moved. A rear sounded from the lake and Timmy Moon's airplane took off for Wrangell. From far away came the sound of hammers over at Around the World Annie's, on the Alaskan side; a tiny town had begun there; she called it Whoopee.

As Hammond walked on, he passed a squat fisherman, gleaming in a new shawl of wildly checkered design, an importation by air.

Then he became aware that someone was calling him. It was Jeanne Towers, waving excitedly from the doorway of her cabin store.

"I've almost sold out," she exclaimed, as he approached. "I'm going to send in another order tomorrow, Larry Balne, he's the one with the all-metal Junkers, is going to bring me back a whole lot of stuff from Fourcrows."

"That's the way a business grows," Hammond bawled. "Two hundred dollars for a claim, doubled all in a couple of weeks."

Jeanne laughed, tipping her home-made gold scales with a toying finger.

"Well, nearly doubled. I hope I do it again."

"And a dozen times after that. Then I'll work like laborer if the gold-mining business plays out."

He went on then, at last to reach Loom creek. Kay was not yet there; it was still breakfast time in most of the camp. But Bruce Kenning was moving along the stream, toward one of his claimed quarter mile beyond a few hundred yards up the stream, where the raw-boned Olson scooped the earth by great shovelfuls into his sluice, was Mrs. Joyce. Hammond saw her there often; now and then he had found Olson sitting on the veranda of the Joyce cottage, talking of wanderings in many lands in his search for gold, while Mrs. Joyce gave far more than her usual monosyllabic rejoinders. There was something about the man which seemed to fascinate her. Suddenly he ceased his musings. Bruce Kenning had come beside him.

"How's the work going with McKenzie Joe?" he asked quietly.

Hammond shrugged his shoulders.

"I haven't been able to get anywhere. He still wants to put down one thing at a time and give the rest of his life to it."

Kenning frowned.

"You can't have that. I'm convinced that the old river bed lies over toward the British Columbia hills," he chuckled. "I wish it were the other way around—all my claims are in the other direction."

Hammond grinned. "Well, you can't say I didn't tell you."

"Oh, you're talking about that stuff I bought from Jeanne Towers, I've added to that a great deal—on the chance that somebody around here would want it. But everybody's looking the other way. Just as well, I'm obligated to turn over some worthless claims to an English syndicate."

"That's beyond me."

"Something took over out of what was left when Joyce died. I guess the house is crooked. They say frankly they probably won't develop the property. They just want something cheap in a live mining camp."

"A stock-selling scheme, probably."

"I haven't much doubt about it. Be glad to have the thing over."

"So would I," Hammond felt he could share Kenning's repugnance. He was fired these days with the thought of new gold, clean money. The eagerness had been mounting ever since that night when Kay had told him her decision. To get gold for Kay—his hands clawed for gold, his mind was centred upon little else.

"How deep do you think we'll have to go to reach that old bedrock?"

"A lot deeper than you'd imagine—ninety to a hundred and twenty feet. From my study of the strata, I can't see any other answer."

ONLY THE BEST

IS GOOD ENOUGH

This outstanding triumph is proof of quality. Twelve first prizes in twelve classes, in this year's Baby Show at the Toronto and Ottawa Exhibitions, were won by babies fed on 'Crown Brand' Corn Syrup.

What better evidence can there be of confidence which Canadian mothers and their physicians have in the purity and quality of 'Crown Brand'.

A delicious table syrup. 'Crown Brand' is a treat for the whole family.

Tell the kids that pictures of their beloved will keep you here for the next fifty years. You've got to spend money to make money in mining.

That's what I've been trying to tell McKenzie Joe. But he—

There he halted. Kay was coming down the trail. Bruce Kenning called good morning and went up the stream. Hours later, with Kay and Hammond watching intently, the workmen began a clean-up of the sluice box on the Joyce claim. It only revealed the usual flour gold, indications of something more to come, but as yet, nothing worth saving.

"Neither this flume nor the sluice is long enough," one of the workers complained. "Me 'n' Jim waste an awful lot of time just standin' around, for fear of shovelin' in too much gravel."

"Then build 'em up now, while you're dried out for the cleanup," Hammond said. "I'm going past the sawmill, I'll tell 'em to send some lumber."

"And nails," called Kay.

"I'll get them."

"Hammond left the stream, with his line of eager workers. At the sawmill he gave the lumber order, then turned for Jeanne's to get the nails. She met him, some fifty yards away, returning from the delivery of a batch of darning.

"Haven't sold all those nails?" he asked.

"I think there are some left. There's been a run on them this morning. Everybody in camp wants nails—or glass."

They reached the store and she lifted the peg from the hamp—five persons in Sapphire Lake even bothered to close their doors. Then, pushing the door open, she walked within the store, suddenly to grasp and to hurry around the end of the rough counter.

The crudely built money drawer stood open. The girl waved, staring at it, her hands half-raised, her jaw gagging. Then she said, in a querulously dulled voice:

"Somebody's been in the store!"

"Had you left your money here?" Hammond asked sharply.

"Yes—all of it. I—I—thought—nobody ever bothers to look up—"

Hammond stared about him. It seemed inconceivable that crime should have entered this far-away place; Sergeant Terry's main work was growing a garden. Beside him, Jeanne Towers continued to stare blankly; it was as if they sought an explanation of the impossible, the supernatural.

"But who would want to steal my money?" she asked dazedly. "They took everything; the bills, and my nuggets and a bottle of gold dust—"

Hammond did not answer. The door had begun to swing shut; the faint breeze therefrom was sufficient to lift a bit of paper, hitherto unnoticed, and whisk it to the floor.

Jack moved for it, but the girl, with swift intuition, sped before him. She grasped it, turning it in her hand. Then, with a spasmodic movement, she crumpled it in a tightly clenched fist.

"It's—nothing," she said. Her face was bloodless.

Facing the Future

Free Peoples Must Realize That They Have To Protect Their Liberty

The men in the British parliament who are demanding more armaments and speedier production are the true guides of our future policy. The past is past. Our leaders have decided, for good or ill, not to regard the disarmament of Czechoslovakia as a casus belli. It cannot be revised now, no matter how brutally Hitler's minions behave toward their fallen foes.

Still, we may be very sure that the old Biblical rule still stands: "Whosoever a man sweth, that shall he also reap."

But we must face the future. One meets a lot of very brave men these latter days since war has been finally averted who talk about what should have been done and said at Berchtesgaden and at Munich. They were not so brave when it looked as if war was actually coming. But all free peoples, including our verbally beligerent American friends, to the south, should realize today as never before that they must be prepared to defend their liberties if they hope to continue to enjoy them.

Criticism from Canada at this time seems especially pointless. How ready are we to join the forces of the Lord and fight at another Armageddon? Yet if we are not ready and willing to fight, we ought at least to have the becoming modesty to keep our mouths shut!—Montreal Star.

Weather Lore

Expert Explodes Theory About Changes Of Climate

Sir Frederic Stupart, 34 years director of the meteorological service of Canada until his recent retirement, says all the talk about the weather changing down through the ages is just so much nonsense.

"I've been looking through the records of the Jesuit fathers and the weather then was just about the same as now," Sir Frederic says when reporters interviewed him regarding his coming eighty-first birthday. "About 15 years ago I prepared a paper on 'Is the Weather Changing?' and came to the conclusion that it was not. In records of 3,000 years ago there are evidences the climate in the Holy Land was not very different from what it is now."

There are "fluctuations or pulsations" every so often, he admitted. There was a period of cold winters in the 18th and a mild spell in the 1890's and the coldest period in the last 150 years was around 1815 and 1816.

Sir Frederic was willing, too, to help explode the myth about the groundhog and his shadow. The activity of squirrels and a big nut hole vest doesn't mean a cold spell or a cold winter and no one will ever be able to produce a satisfactory rain by shattering the clouds with bombs, he added.

Should Not Be Specialized

McGill Principal Warns Against Too Many Cubby Holes In Education

A warning that the specialization of knowledge, and the separating of it into cubby holes, was not the chief aim of education was given by Principal Lewis W. Douglas in his address at Montreal to the graduating class and other students of McGill at the University Fall Convocation. Dr. Douglas maintained that specialization had been carried to such an extent that many were unqualified, by reason of the lack of possession of a broad cultural background, to hold that position, and urged his listeners to consider education as the process by which man interprets all the divisions of knowledge into a co-ordinated, integrated, unified conception of living.

Employs Only Men

No Women Have Ever Worked For Brighton Firm

There are no flowers on the desks of directors of the business controlled by A. R. T. Perry, decorators' merchant, in Brighton, England, and the south coast.

Why? Because, though Mr. Perry employs more than a hundred men and boys in his showrooms, girl employees have been banned from the business house of Perry for nearly 70 years—from the first day that his father opened the shop in Duke street, Brighton.

Boys answer the telephone, do all the typing, make the office tea. Men show women customers round. And boys do all the office cleaning—even charwomen fall under the ban.

Mr. Perry won't have it that he is prejudiced against girls. He even admits that they can excel men in business.

For 25 years he has been a leader of the Brighton and Hove Battalion of the Boys' Brigade, and it is his ambition to give every boy he can a chance in life.

As captain, commanding officer or vice-president of the battalion, he believes in the doctrine of "Give boys a chance."

His businesses are so organized that he claims no boy can find himself in a blind-alley job. All have a chance of rising to the top.

"My husband finds in his type of business that he is lucky enough to carry on without women. But he likes to see them in the home," Mrs. Perry says.

And Mr. Perry's employees? The sales manager at the Duke street branch said with enthusiasm, "We prefer it this way. We don't in the least miss the feminine touch. We are happier without it."

"A female can be a disturbing influence in business. Without her there is less inclination to waste time. Every one has his own job to do and there is no question of 'Don't do that, dear, let me do it for you.'"

"Certainly no flowers on the boss' desk. They'd soon get thrown back if one tried it."

Have Real Problem

Nova Scotia Fishermen Get Very Little For Hard Work

Three Nova Scotia, inshore fishermen, after toiling from daybreak to noon, landed 423 pounds of fish. The Halifax Herald prints the following report of what happened.

For the catch, the fishermen were paid $5.68.

From the $3.68 the fishermen had to deduct $1 for delivery to market, leaving $2.68 to pay for three men's work, gasoline, bait, and upkeep of boat and gear.

Of the 423-pound catch, 324 pounds were sold to retail customers. The consumers paid for those 324 pounds of fish a total of $30.20.

Housewives paid almost ten times the gross earnings of the fishermen. Whether or not the circumstances in this specific case were exceptional we do not know. But study of prices paid to fishermen and prices paid by the consumer over a period of some weeks shows a very wide gap indeed.—Maclean's Magazine.

Features Of The Future

New Architecture Will Be Seen At Coming World's Fair

A preview of the style of architecture to be exemplified in the New York World's Fair is provided by the lavish new metropolitan night club, the Riviera. Every interior wall curves on an arc, giving each room an illusion of far greater spaciousness. The main dining room, a huge oval of 6,000 square feet, belies the compact appearance of the building's exterior.

Other "features of the future" are a disappearing 52-ton roof, a receding stage, a revolving stage with colored floor lights, a revolving bandstand for orchestra changes, and sliding glass walls which keep at the toes of a switch and open the huge dining room to the Hudson River's breeze.

Oklahoma City Suffered A Flood After Water Shortage

It was tough when Disney, Oklahoma, was without water. It was just as tough when water came. Short of supply since mid-July, residents let their faucets open constantly to catch every drop that entered the mains. City engineers found a good flow, hooked it on without notice. The new water supply boomed into the mains, the faucets, the homes. Disney suffered a flood.

Two new cases of chickenpox among Irma school children were reported Wednesday. Under the Public Health Act of the province of Alberta persons can be fined for failing to report communicable diseases to the medical health officer or local board of health. The authorities intend to enforce these regulations.

Eight cases of chickenpox among the children of the Irma school district have been reported so far and have been placed under modified quarantine. Parents should understand that it is their duty to report to the medical health officer all suspicious cases of sickness and to keep the patient isolated as much as possible until the case has been properly diagnosed. Prevention is ever no much better than cure.

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS
In Flanders' fields, the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you, from falling hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to lift it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders' fields.
